

COL PENDER TALKS ON OUR WATER SUPPLY

Favors a Dam at Dover and Durham Points For Manufacturing Purposes

At the meeting of the Business New Hampshire railroads and the men of Portsmouth at the Y. M. C. A., on Thursday evening, addresses were given by Ex-Mayor John Pender and John W. Kelley, Esq. The former devoted his remarks to the good roads movement and Portsmouth's water supply. Mr. Kelley spoke interestingly of that over a century ago the question of good roads was considered, one of importance and one that merited considerable attention for those times. The records of New Hampshire show that one hundred years ago, 500 miles of turnpike roads had been built in the state at an average cost of $1000 per mile for construction. One short place of road between Hampton and Hampton Falls, less than two miles in length, cost $14,000 at a time when labor cost less than half what it does in the present day and material less too. There were fifty-three turnpike corporations in New Hampshire, by authority of the state and more than half a million dollars had been spent at that time for good roads. When we take into consideration the fact that the population of New Hampshire was about 200,000 in 1820—Portsmouth had 7300 inhabitants, with Londonderry, Sanborn, and Gilman

WILL LOSE ARM THIEVES ROB FREIGHT HOUSE

Workman at Roland Baker Co., Badly Injured

Left Arm Caught in an Unhairing Machine and Badly Crushed

Shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon Alexander Apenau, a Poland, employed at the Roland Baker company's tannery was badly injured. Apenau, was at work on an unhairing machine when he got his left hand caught in the machine and the arm was drawn in and badly crushed before the power could be shut down and the injured member extricated. Dr. John J. Berry was summoned and the injured man was immediately taken to the Portsmouth hospital for treatment. The arm was found to be so badly crushed, that amputation was necessary just below the shoulder. Besides the injury to his arm, he also sustained a slight scalp wound. Apenau is reported as being quite weak from the loss of blood and suffering from the shock attending the accident. He is said to be a man of about 30 years of age, and very little is known about him by his employers.

Several Stores Also Entered At Wenham Last Night

Several stores and the Boston and Maine railroad freight house at Wenham were broken into by thieves on Thursday night or early this morning. At the freight house a large amount of canned goods and clothing were taken. The railroad officials think the job was the work of tramps who came east after the break. The local police were notified to watch out for the thieves early today.

HORSE EATS HER SUGAR

But the Owner Pays for His Feed

A Kittery woman, who came to this city on Thursday on a shopping tour made a purchase of a large bag of sugar among other stores. She placed the sweet stuff in the rear of her wagon and it was not there long before a horse attached to one of the job wagons got his smeller to work and then his teeth. He was just cleaning up the bag when Officer Sullivan called it off and yanked the check rein on the broncho. The expressman returned later only to find that his plug had been stealing and had to hand over two dollars to the lady across the river to cover damages.

HUBLEY INJURED

Word was received in this city yesterday that John Hubley, aged 28 years, widely known about town, was seriously injured in a fall from the mast to the deck of a Consolidation Coal company barge in Norfolk, Va. Hubley writes that he is confined in a hospital recovering from injuries that were first thought to be critical. Three ribs were broken and the protruding end of the bones caused internal injuries. Hubley was working on the barge on which he embarked while in this city. On a southern trip the barge encountered high winds and seas. Anticipating a sudden gust the crew began to take in sail. A portion of the canvas was lashed to a mast by the wind. Hubley "slipped" the mast to release the sail. While at work his strength deserted him and he fell to the deck, landing upon his left shoulder and side. When the barge reached Norfolk he was placed ashore and conveyed to the hospital. Hubley has been a life of physical troubles. When a lad Hubley's left eye was pierced by a sharp stick and the sight was destroyed. About a year ago he became involved in a fight and the opposite eye was so

COUNTY MEDICAL SOCIETY MEETING

Hear Many Interesting Papers By Specialists, and Elect Officers

The seventh annual meeting of the Rockingham County Medical Society was held at the Rockingham Hotel, on Thursday, with one of the largest attendance for some years. At 1:30 dinner was served in the practically all of the members being present. The meeting was called together at 10:30 with President Dr. T. W. Luce presiding. After the usual routine work, President made his annual address. There were some excellent papers read. Dr. Frank H. Lahey, of Boston, had an interesting address on "The Surgical Treatment of Thyroid Disease." Dr. W. R. MacAusland, of Boston, had a learned paper on "After Treatment of Infantile Paralysis."

COL. PENDER TALKS ON WATER SUPPLY

ton the only other towns in the state with more than 3000 each, Manchester had 731, Concord 2328, Dover 2871 and Exeter 2114. We must come to admit that the much boasted appropriation of $1,000,000 in these days of a more populous and wealthy state must suffer by comparison with the willingness of the earlier New Hampshire citizens to expend their money for good roads.

However, the present attitude of the state toward the expenditure of public money for the welfare of the commonwealth in the matter of building good roads is comparatively new. I am of the opinion that the good roads movement here should be dated from the year 1897 when the movement for the ocean boulevard took shape. This was the first concerted effort looking toward a system of roadways built with state money. Up to that time, there had been instances where the state had made small appropriations for roads in the mountainous regions, through sparsely settled and poor towns.

It was my proud privilege to start the ball rolling for modern good roads built by the state and, when an attempt was made by me to secure an appropriation for the survey and laying out of the road one hundred feet wide along the coast, to belong to the state and ensure for all time the benefits of a coast line and beach privileges to all the people for all time, the project was instantly held up to ridicule and hailed as extravagant.

The chairman of the legislative committee to whom it was referred, after I had introduced the matter at Concord, was much against the plan because of cost. He estimated the expense of building such a road projected along the New Hampshire coast at $1,000,000. I believed that the sum he set would not be sufficient, but did not say so, as I believed that, whatever the cost, the amount laid out on such a coast road would be well expended and would return to the state manifold in the material advantage always following in the wake of good roads.

After a hard fight, entailing much work on the Portsmouth delegation and Councilor Joseph O. Hobbs of North Hampton, we succeeded in getting from the legislature for the preliminary work a small appropriation, not sufficient to do even this satisfactory except for the fact that we were fortunate enough to secure the service of Arthur W. Dudley of Brentwood, a well known and capable civil engineer, who said he would take up the task and trust to the future to get his pay, satisfied for the present to take what was left after other expenses had been paid from the meagre appropriation.

Directly following this public-spirited project in the part of Mr. Dudley, the committee had another stroke of good fortune, when a young attorney of our town city came forward and offered to do the legal work necessary, which entailed a hard and difficult task upon him for a very small sum.

This attorney, John W. Kelley, stated that the matter of the coast boulevard was a public work which was going to be of vast benefit to his state and community, and he wanted to take a hand in adding it to a successful inauguration. For the small sum he received for his services he had to serve a legal notice on every abutter on the proposed route of the boulevard and attend every hearing held in the matter so you can readily see that the amount he contributed toward the start of the state boulevard was a very substantial one.

But, with the aid of the these two public spirited citizens and the very small appropriation passed by the legislature, the only new one sanctioned by the body, we were enabled to lay out the New Hampshire highway along the coast.

It was less than a decade and half ago that we fought so hard to gain a very small appropriation for good roads, yet so rapidly has the sentiment toward state road building changed and gained in its favor that the recent legislature made an appropriation of $1,000,000 for three state highways.

These highways were laid out by the governor and council. In laying out the eastern highway of the three, they incorporated the ocean boulevard as one of the integral parts, which, in my judgment, was entirely wrong.

In this matter, the people of this section of the state were not consulted. Had the governor and council passed over Portsmouth in a flying machine, the residents might have known something of their visit, but, if anyone knew of the trip they made here to lay out the route of this highway, they certainly were not consulted, as far as I am able to learn.

In laying out the eastern highway they avoided the direct route and as a result of their choice we have no more in the way of good roads than we had before. The selection of routes surely was not the best.

I am of the opinion that, the main highways built by the state should be but the arteries which many veins of travel could unite at various points. Under this basic idea, the eastern highway is not properly laid out. Would it not have been better to have made the start at the state line in Seabrook, come in a direct line to this city and then out over a direct line to Fox Point, Newington, rebuilding the bridge at that point? From Portsmouth to Fox Point, with a new road under construction, 100 feet wide, I venture to say that every abutter would have been willing to donate the land.

After passing Fox Point, and crossing the bay, the old road to Dover could be made a part of the state highway and at some future time the old turnpike to Concord would come into play. The distance from the end of the bridge in Durham to Concord is only thirty-six miles and the distance from Portsmouth to Concord by such a route as I have outlined would be only forty two miles.

Such a route would open up for Portsmouth a considerable trading population, drawn from residents of Durham, Newmarket, Northwood, Nottingham, Lee, Barrington and other towns bordering or near the proposed highway.

Such a route would also afford an opportunity for the people of Concord and the neighboring cities to speed down to our beach in their autos and carriages and be more neighborly than they are now when forced to depend on round-about routes, both railroad and highways.

The good road movement can mean much to our city. It should be made to yield the most it should to the interest of the state for the amount of money expended.

I had a friend in my younger days who told me of the building of the Piscataqua bridge, which was constructed when he was an apprentice in a bakery in Dover. His "boss" was very enthusiastic over the building of the bridge and was continually telling him how "it would bring Portsmouth right up to Dover" and of the advantages that this would entail to the interests of that upriver city. The bridge was completed and Mr. "boss" thereupon immediately began to go out and hail farmers from Lee, Barrington and other towns, to get their prices on butter, eggs and the other commodities that he found use for in his business or family. The almost invariable reply that he met to his calls was: "Don't stop me, I'm on my way to Portsmouth."

After a considerable period of this finding that business was flowing to Portsmouth, instead of coming from it, the bakery man pulled up stakes and followed the crowd to Portsmouth. My friend told me. So, with the extension of good roads from and to Portsmouth, under a same system, believe other traders and business would flock here.

When I was working in the interest of the ocean boulevard, I had occasion to look up what other states were doing. I found that, at that time, New Jersey led in the amount of state money expended and that California, Connecticut and Massachusetts were doing much, while New York state had not started. That time has passed and New York now leads us all with an appropriation of $500,000 while nearly all of the other states of the union have become interested in the good movement. And on top of this auspicious future for good roads, built with state money, I believe it will not be long before the national government enters upon plans for good roads which will discount all others.

WATER

To pass from the subject of good roads, if you will allow me to digress for a few moments, I would like to say a few words about our city itself and its needs. The greatest of the latter at the present time is water. If we ever expect to persuade the manufacturing concerns to locate here and make for business and prosperity. Almost the first question a manufacturer asks, when looking about for a location is in relation to a supply of water and whether it is fit for boiler purposes.

When we consider the Portsmouth water supply, we must also ask "Have we sufficient?" There can be but one reply. We have sufficient for present use, but not enough if we

GRAY HAIR MAKES YOU LOOK OLD

Use Sage and Sulphur and Your Gray Hairs Will Vanish

Gray hair is a mark of age, and nothing that can be said as to its beauty will offset the disadvantages of this mark of age set upon your brow.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy darkens the hair and restores it to its youthful beauty. Our grandmothers and their grandmothers before them used sage and sulphur for darkening their hair. Nothing has ever been found more effective for this purpose than these time honored remedies, but Wyeth, a modern chemist, has combined the two with other ingredients, which makes a delightful dressing for the hair, and which not only removes every trace of dandruff but promotes the growth of the hair. It also stops the hair from falling out, and makes it beautiful.

All druggists are authorized to refund the money if it fails to do exactly as represented.

Don't neglect your hair and don't resort to old-time hair dyes. Get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur from your druggist today, and notice the difference in your hair after a few days' use.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

are going to grow, and I am confident that Portsmouth is going to grow and grow rapidly in the near future. Indeed the time of boom is already at hand, as many unmistakable indications in our city show us.

We have a supply of water at Peverly Brook that is suitable for the boilers of manufacturing plants, but that supply at present is limited. No manufacturer is anxious to use the main water supply of Portsmouth. It is too severe on boilers.

As long ago as when I was a boy, there was talk of obtaining a water supply for Portsmouth from Jones' pond in Raymond. At the last session of the legislature, an act was passed incorporating a company which planned for the construction of a dam in the Lauprey river at Epping. It was told by one of the promoters of this project that by the construction of dams and the creating of reservoirs, a storage capacity of about two billion gallons of water could be secured at that point. He stated that the company looked for about 1800 horse power at the Epping dam and stated that the entire cost for the rights and the erection of the dams would not be more than $300,000.

I favored the bill to incorporate the company, which was formed, according to the promoters, for the manufacture of electricity, but I told the incorporators that, when their plans had gone through, I hoped that Dover, Newmarket, Durham, and Exeter would combine with Portsmouth and take over the entire properties, dams, basins and all, for a metropolitan system.

The acquisition of such a source of supply would give a gravity water system of high merit and be a highly important advantage to South eastern New Hampshire. Nearly if not all of the places I have mentioned as hoping to integrate have complained of their water supplies, either for insufficiency of supply or lack of quality. It looks to me as if this project was one worthy of serious consideration on the part of Portsmouth.

There is a matter to which I have given considerable thought which I believe could be carefully worked out to the consequent advantage of our community.

We have near us a large arm of the river called Great Bay and another known as Little Bay, just above the Dover Point bridge. The named arm of the river is of great extent and, although its waters are not very deep, even at high tide, the basin contains a large amount of water at low ebb and flows with rising and falling of the tides.

Little Bay, between Dover Point bridge and Great Bay has quite a depth of water, I believe that with a dam at Dover Point and another at Durham Point, a power plant could be operated at Durham Point which could generate an extensive power for the manufacturing of this vicinity which could be transmitted to them at small cost. At the Dover Point dam, automatic gates could be constructed that would allow the waters of Little Bay to flow out with the tide. Then the gates would close, preventing the return of the water on the flood tide. A large basin would thus be available for the overflow at Durham, which would concentrate the power now shown at Newmarket, Exeter and other points of Great Bay. The overflow would not fill the basin of Little Bay and the Back river before the turn of the tide and the water that had accumulated would go out with the opening of the gates.

Such a project would not only give a power plant of large size, but would create an immense fresh water pond out of Great Bay, now a salty arm of the river, and, in addition to affording further industrial advantages to Portsmouth, would create an inland body of water that would be one of the beauty spots of this section of the state and which would speedily be surrounded by the cottages of those able and anxious to spend their season on the shores of a fresh water lake.

"BLOOD MET BLOOD," SAY THE ITALIANS

Washington, Nov. 9.—That "the punishment fitted the crime" and "blood met blood" on Tripolitan battlefields was declared in a cable message sent to the Italian embassy today by Marquis di San Giuliano, Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs, referring to the reported Italian atrocities against the Turks and Arabs.

The telegram from Marquis di San Giuliano was in the form of an official statement, under caption, "Italians Hear Arabian Cruelty." At the outset he recognized the fact that people abroad might regard the reported acts of the soldiers as excessive cruelty, and declared that to be understood thoroughly, talks were necessary with officers and soldiers, particularly those of the 11th Bersaglieri—those who suffered the worst in the battle of Oct. 23.

"Our soldiers occupied the entrenchments at Sidi Mesri," the Foreign Minister's telegram continued, "and between them and the Arabs situated back of the village there had been established friendly relations. The Italian soldiers used to give part of their rations to the Arabs and they made presents to the poor families of the Arabians, presents welcomed because of their poverty."

"The soldiers paid without any dispute for everything they purchased from the Arabs. Some officers even bought clothing for the naked children. I think that, since such wars began, never have natives been treated with such kindness."

"But suddenly, in the midst of the hard fighting, from the small white Arab houses back of our soldiers, were rushed out infuriated men, inhuman and horrible things happened. An Italian surgeon was killed by the father of a girl whom he had cured and saved. A wounded soldier had been left alone for a moment by his comrades. His throat was cut by a woman who crept stealthily upon him through the dead and wounded."

"There were cruelties unspeakable! Red Cross attendants carrying stretchers to aid the wounded Turks were treacherously slain by these wounded men. Isolated soldiers, wounded in the interior, were disemboweled.

"Strange incidents of horror there were. An Arab was seen fleeing with bits of human flesh stuffed into an Italian soldier's knapsack. The soldier was later found crucified in a native hut."

"It was dreadful to be obliged to fight in a network of narrow paths flanked by high walls of land, having certainly that before you, behind and surrounding you there could be hidden a terrible enemy, men who fought without regard to the regulations of war."

"The punishment was proportionate to the crime. Tooth for tooth our soldiers fought. The oppression passed like a scythe over the battlefield. Blood met blood."

The Turkish Ambassador, Yousouf Zio Pasha left Washington today for New York. At the embassy it was stated that the purpose of his visit was unknown.

U. S. S. CHESTER LOOKED FOR.

She is Expected to Tell American Government Exactly What Has Been Happening in Tripoli.

Washington, Nov. 9.—Interest is being manifested here in the movements of the scout cruiser Chester, during the past few days, and her expected arrival at Marselles today, which is expected to be followed by a report to the Government on the local situation in Tripoli.

It is not believed that the vessel went to Tripoli simply for the purpose of finding out whether the American consul or others desired to use the ship to set away from the cholera-infested district, when cable messages would have developed the information.

TEACHERS HAVE PLEASANT SOCIAL

The first of the usual winter socials by the Portsmouth Teachers' Association was held on Thursday evening in Assembly hall at the high school, and it was a very pleasant party.

There was a good crowd present, including the teachers and their friends, and the members of the Board of Instruction.

An excellent musical program was given by the following artists: Oliver H. Dowd, violinist, rendered several pleasing solos, and he was accompanied by Miss Florence Marshall on the piano. Mr. Dowd is a talented young player and his solos were greatly appreciated.

Miss Ethel Seavey sang several selections and she was in excellent voice.

Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. The affair was in charge of the following committee: Miss Annie L. McDonough, chairman; Misses McDaniels, Griffin, Beane, Mallory and Mr. Bunker.

Map of Tripoli and Italian Commander Who Is Accused of Unspeakable Atrocities.

That the Italian forces in Tripoli, acting under orders of their commanding officer, General Caneva, are carrying on a war of extermination is the charge made by newspaper correspondents on the scene. Women and children are alleged to have been shot, cripples and blind beggars put to death, and sick people whose houses had been burned left on the ground to die and refused even a drop of water. On the whole the atrocities credited to Caneva are even worse than the practices of the Spanish, General Weyler, whose brutal outrages in Cuba won for him the sobriquet "Butcher."

SHOULD MAN FEEL COMPLICIT WHEN ACCEPTED

A wife in a divorce proceeding testified that she married her husband for convenience, and that she never loved him. She may not be the first woman to openly acknowledge the fact, and she certainly is not the first woman who married for convenience. Can you blame a woman? But as the law ignores the sentimental idea of "marriages are made in heaven," and takes cognizance of the reality that the inducements to wedlock are mostly of a terrestrial nature, the Kansas City Court of Appeals, denies that such a motive affects the validity of the marriage or her right to a divorce.

WHEN IS A STATE A PARTY?

When the Supreme Court turns the light of reason on the Constitution we may profitably notice the spectral effect. What we see depends on whether we get, with our less powerful lenses, the same focus as the court or whether the light strikes us aslant, as it does sometimes a disconcerting justice. In some opinions the radiance is so diffused that mere common sense is satisfied. In others the shaft of light is concentrated with such a glare that a provision apparently plain stands out as an enigma of deepest subtlety. The original jurisdiction of the Supreme Court extends to all cases in which a state is a party. This is a constitutional statement expressed in simple language and apparently free from the mystifying clouds of eternal doubt. Not so, however, for the light of reason shows it to be a mountain peak faintly breaking through the dispelling gloom of enveloping mist and fog. A statute reserved to Congress the right to regulate freight rates in the Indian Territory until a state government should exist, when that government should possess the right to regulate. Congress prescribed the Kansas railroad rates for domestic shipments. The state of Oklahoma, after its admission sought, by original bill in the United States Supreme Court, to enjoin a railroad from charging rates greater than those authorized by Kansas. The court in Oklahoma v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad company, dismissed the bill for want of jurisdiction. The state in its corporate capacity was not in the business of shipping commodities. If the rates were illegal under state regulation or were in themselves unreasonable and purely arbitrary a controversy might arise between the shippers and the company. The state was not interested, though it fixed the rates. In the light of reason, the court concludes that the words "in which a state shall be a party" are not to be interpreted as conferring jurisdiction in every case in which the state elects to make itself strictly a party plaintiff of record, and seeks not to protect its own property, but only to vindicate the wrongs of some of its people or to enforce its own laws or public policy against wrongdoers generally."

BIRD'S EYE VIEWS

The length of time required for a trial in Italy makes it likely that a defendant will live out his allotted span without having his guilt or innocence officially established.

W. R. Hearst has indicated with evident sincerity that his regard for the democratic party is a serious affection and not an affinity attachment.

China will, of course display some prejudice here and there toward these Wu Ting-fang notions.

An invitation to the United States to intervene is a customary feature of foreign altercations.

As evidence of sincere patriotic enthusiasm it should be noted that there was as much interest in the state election bulletins as there was in the base ball bulletins.

If Wu Ting-fang continues to interfere in Chinese politics he will have trouble in convincing any life insurance agent that he is likely to live two hundred years.

Notwithstanding the majority for prohibition, the temperance lecturer will feel that there is a chance for him to accomplish something here and there in Maine.

Mr. Victor Berger is listening intently for the voice of the people to exclaim at an election. "A plague on both your houses."

Various democrats will now arise to explain that the unexpected is very liable to happen in an off year.

Tammany's history is largely made up of a record of narrow escapes.

The Washington man who was interrupted while reading about the French revolution by a pair of robbers, who secured his attention by thrusting a pistol between him and his book, is probably convinced that the days of adventure are not ended. It is given to few people to have their lives of tragic history so sharply accentuated.

American voters, even in the absence of the recall, manage to dispense with a number of public servants on comparatively short notice.

Occasionally serious delay is encountered because of the necessity of removing a too conspicuous price tag from a toga.

Passing a civil service examination is easy compared to the task of qualifying for a Los Angeles jury. Is the necessity for a safe and sane Halloween to become as imperative as the necessity for a safe and sane Fourth? There are reports of all sorts of pranks verging on the dangerous and requiring activity on the part of the police. It is odd that in this country innocent merriment should so often take such dangerous forms.

There are no new cases of cholera in Kentucky was debatable ground; but the election of an overwhelmingly Democratic Legislature dispels that hope. Mr. Ollie James, now in the national House, can probably read in his little clear in consequence to a place in the Senate.

There are now cases of cholera in Genoa, Naples or Palermo, and the number of the sick is rapidly decreasing. This, of course, will not interfere with the blithe hunt for germs on every ship that comes hither from those ports.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

Abuse of Halloween

Just as the country is becoming familiar with the growing demand for a "safe and sane" Fourth of July comes the suggestion that it may be necessary to start a crusade for a more sensible and appropriate observance of Halloween. It is a fact which no one appears to have attempted to explain that so soon as a playful and harmless custom is transplanted from the older countries of Europe to American it sooner or later begins to take on the characteristics of the typical celebration of the anniversary of American independence. Fun becomes mischief, and mischief develops into lawlessness. Not only are citizens subjected to annoyance by childish pranks, which of itself is not a very serious matter, but the spirit of mischief leads to the removing of signs and gates and the destruction of property. Word comes from as far away as Spokane, in the state of Washington, that on the occasion of the last Halloween there were no fewer than three hundred calls for the police, made necessary not by such pranks as ringing doorbells and shooting peas, but by actual lawlessness and injury to property. From nearly all parts of the country in fact come reports of all sorts of pranks bordering on the dangerous and calling for the interference of the police. In the older countries, where Halloween has been observed for centuries, there is no such excess, and it would be interesting if some philosopher would tell us why there is so marked difference in America.—Manchester Union

Differing Doctors

When the doctors differ, who shall decide? One faith in the infallibility of the Maine Farmers' Almanac as a prognosticator of the weather receives a rude shock by comparison of these forecasts with those of the Old Farmer's Almanac, another New England institution which with the first named stands high in the public confidence. One of them is published in Augusta, and the other in Boston. The cities are less than 200 miles apart, the difference in latitude is considerably less than that, and the sea, mountains, elevation and general lay of the land are not different it would seem, as to cause radical difference in weather conditions. But what do we find? Right here in the weather for the month of January, 1912, we find the Old Farmer "fair" for the first week. "Now expect snow or rain," says the Boston publication opposite the second week beginning with Sunday, the 7th, while the Augusta publication says "cloudy." True, these are less contradictory than the first, and either may be a good guess, but Augusta is more reserved and less definite. Again Augusta sets "a rain storm" for the middle of the month, while Boston goes to the opposite extreme and predicts "cold, biting winds from the northwest." This, however, is changed to moderate, weather about the 18th to the 24th, and then the two come into their first agreement on cold weather for the month. How about February? Augusta seems to look for a rather mild February, with "cloudy skies," "some signs of rain," "clear weather," and "perhaps snow" distributed at convenient intervals while Boston evidently anticipates considerable snow and wind and changeable weather. Take July, Augusta predicts a "hot and dry" Fourth, but Boston, while conceding that it is going to be "very warm" about that time thinks it will be "favorable for showers," and both authorities are quite safe in expecting more or less sultry weather, varied by thunderstorms.

The doll turns out to be stuffed with sawdust. If the weather experts of the almanacs can agree, no better than this, we shall have to place reliance on Old Prob. The bureau of meteorology does not undertake to prognosticate the conditions a year in advance. If it succeeds in sitting them with reasonable certainty twelve hours in the future, it thinks is doing as well as can be expected. When the almanacs get down to astronomical calculations, tidal tables, eclipses, aspects, holidays, etc., it sets onto the firm ground of mathematical fact and invites confidence. It would better let the weather forecasts alone.—Portland Press.

The Chinese Student

The most significant change in the life of China in modern times is the change that has taken place in the life of the student. It began to be plain to the western world after the defeat of China by Japan. Then the rulers of the nation learned a bitter lesson in the relative weakness of an oriental nation guided by ancient and unchanged eastern ideas and an oriental nation with the ideas and methods of the modern west. In the defeat of Russia by Japan the Chinese party learned another lesson, for different and with vast implications, viz., the possibility of an oriental nation with western ideas and methods, coping successfully with a powerful nation of the west. The result was an impulse, feeble and ill-regulated at first but gaining steadily in force and persistence, to turn the study which is the one universal activity of China toward the west. Large numbers of Chinese youths flocked to Japan to Europe and to the United States, some sent by the Imperial or by provincial governments some by their families, many of their own motion. On the other hand a strong pressure arose for the modification of study at home, for the introduction of western courses and for the study not of the mere text of the Confucian classics, but for that of their essential and vital principles of morality. Gradually this pressure has had its effect. The Imperial government, whether in entire good faith or not has in form yielded to it, and its fruits sooner or later are sure to be gathered. Here in practice lies the greatest revolutionary force that has called into action.—New York Times

Intemperate Temperance

Figures given by Surgeon General Dorney, U. S. A., show conclusively, what every person acquainted with army life knows perfectly well, that there was a marked decrease in alcoholism among the soldiers after the canteen was established, and that there was an increase after the abolition of the canteen. Yet this odious measure was forced upon a cowardly Congress by advocates of so-called "temperance." The progress of the army towards sobriety "would have been sustained," we are told, "but for the undoubtedly injurious effect the abolition of the canteen, which destroyed the attractiveness of the soldier's club and compelled him to go outside of the limits of the military post for amusement. In this way he is compelled to drink distilled liquors to excess, in place of mild fermented liquors in moderation." That the canteen should be restored on the ground of morals alone is undeniable, though "temperance" interests continue to oppose it bitterly.—Providence Journal.

Sewing Circle of K. of C. on the increase. Add an Evening to the Work.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Portsmouth Council of Knights of Columbus recently organized for a charitable aim, held their second session at the lodge rooms on Thursday afternoon where the work of sewing was taken up with good progress. It was decided that the society give one night to the work in order that those unable to attend during the day could be present, thus making three afternoons and one evening per month to assist charity. An increase in membership marked the second gathering of the ladies.

The engineer and firemen of a north bound passenger train will not go hunting deer again unless they carry a gun. THE 25 HOOSIERS HAVE ARRIVED

And the Great Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet Club Opens for Members on Saturday

These clubs have been formed in all the leading cities by the Hoosier representatives for the sole purpose of allowing people to buy one of the celebrated Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet—exactly like picture—at the club rate of One Dollar a week for a few weeks. In other words, until the full price of the cabinet has been paid.

This club is not to be confused with the installment plan, as it is under the direct supervision of the Hoosier Manufacturing Company, New Castle, Ind., the largest manufacturers of kitchen cabinets in the world.

Anyone entering her name in the club receives the immediate delivery of the cabinet to her home where it will begin at once to save hundreds of steps each day.

The Hoosier has a separate place for everything used in the preparation of a meal and will earn its cost many times over in the hundreds of steps and material it saves.

If you wish to know more about the Hoosier Cabinets or the Club plan our demonstrator will be pleased to give you the information.

NEXT WEEK ONLY—The Club will be open to members and is limited to 25 members, so if you wish to secure one of the cabinets at the club rate of One Dollar a week you should enter your name at once.

One Hoosier Special Cabinet Given Away Free. Come in—ask questions without the slightest obligations.

NO DYSPEPSIA OR STOMACH DISTRESS

Heartburn, Gas, Sourness and Stomach Misery Vanishes

There would not be a case of indigestion here if readers who are subject to stomach trouble knew the tremendous anti-ferment and digestive virtue contained in Diapiesin. This harmless preparation will digest a heavy meal without the slightest fuss or discomfort, and relieve the sorest field stomach in five minutes, besides overcoming all foul, nauseous odors from the breath.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on each cent case of Diapiesin, then you will readily understand why this promptly cures indigestion and removes such symptoms as Heartburn, a feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, Belching Gas and Eructations, of undigested food, water brash, Nausea, Headache, Biliotenesia and many other bad symptoms; and, besides, you will not need laxative to keep your stomach, liver and intestines clean and fresh.

If your Stomach is sour and full of gas, or your food doesn't digest, and your meals don't seem to fit, why not get a 50 cent case from your druggist and make life worth living? Absolute relief from Stomach misery and perfect digestion of anything you eat is sure to follow five minutes after, and, besides, one 50 cent case is sufficient to cure a whole family of such trouble.

Surely, a harmless, inexpensive preparation like Diapiesin, which will always either at daytime or during night, relieve your stomach misery and digest your meals, is about as handy and valuable a thing as you could have in the house.

SENTENCED TO EIGHT YEARS IN STATE PRISON

Orman Carl Convicted of Attempt to Poison Family—John Moore Gets 60 Days—Other Cases

Orman Carl of Deerfield, convicted at 5.30 and they returned a verdict by jury of placing poison in the well of John Randall of Northwood. County Solicitor Gupitl at once was sentenced in Superior court on moved for sentence and Judge Wallace Thursday afternoon, to not less than eight or more than ten years in state prison.

Carl was tried before a jury, the case being called on Wednesday afternoon and it extended all through Thursday, many witnesses being examined on both sides.

Carl was employed by John Randall of Northwood, a farmer and blacksmith, and he became infatuated with Randall's daughter, and as he was a man 60 years of age, and the daughter less than 30, her father objected, and when he continued to annoy her, he was discharged. It was in evidence that Carl subsequently made threats against Randall.

On the night of Aug. 5, it was said that Carl filled the well and spring used by the Randall family with arsenate of lead. The following morning when Mrs. Randall went to the well to get some water she noticed the white powder on the water and became suspicious. The spring was also found to have the same white powder floating on it, and the fact started an investigation. The matter was reported to the County Solicitor and the next day Solicitor Gupitl ordered Carl's arrest. A subsequent analysis of the water ment that has been made by the Navy Department. By this means it was shown that it was arsenate of lead and there was enough powder used to have killed the whole family. The case was given to the jury.

John H. Moore, the colored married man, was sentenced to sixty days in the state prison for breaching the peace with cost.

Thomas McHenry and Eva Brown, indicted for adultery, was brought to trial and they were continued for sentence.

Arthur Proctor of Candia, indicted for assault on his wife, was continued for sentence.

Judge Wallace will finish up the session this forenoon and return in the afternoon for court cases. The jury were discharged on Friday from further attendance.

ago it was determined that certain officers who had received special training in engineering should, at the rate of about two a year, be designated for duty in the designing of new machinery for vessels it war. These officers were to be regarded as on permanent engineering duty and to have no assignment at sea. They are to be employed in the Bureau of Steam Engineering or at the important navy yards, where work in the machinery branch is under way. There are four of these officers on duty. They are of the rank of commander and lieutenant commander, and ordinarily would be obliged to serve a certain proportion of their time at sea in order to qualify for promotion. The Secretary of the Navy can always waive this requirement, and in view of the departmental order establishing the position of designing engineer it was assumed that assignment to the duty and retention of the officer on shore duty would not interfere with the regular promotion of the individual. It recently occurred to the naval authorities, however, that this arrangement was not in accordance with law, and the question might be raised that the designing engineer was not qualified for promotion because of lack of sea service. It has now been arranged that these officers, at their option, shall serve periods at sea where they may continue their observations under the practical conditions of duty afloat and be thus much better qualified to do designing.

Central Labor Union Passes Resolutions

A meeting of the Central Labor Union was held on Thursday evening, and a committee consisting of M. B. Clarke, C. R. Lewis and J. V. Noble, were appointed to draw up resolutions to be presented to the New Hampshire delegation, endorsing the Hooper bill, which will be before Congress at the next session. This bill is to prevent convict labor on the making of cloth, leather goods, etc.

The same committee were empowered to draw up resolutions, to the Commandant of the Navy Yard, protesting against a man employed on the navy yard contracting for labor that should be given to private parties.

The Central body will start an active campaign this winter for more unions.

Marotta Held for Upper Court

In Police Court on Thursday evening, Charles Marotta, an Italian at North End, was arraigned on three charges: For selling liquor, for keeping a disorderly house and for fornication. There were a number of witnesses and the court room was crowded with spectators, the North End delegation being out in full force. On the charge of keeping a disorderly house and selling liquor decision was reserved, and on the charge of fornication he was held in $100 bonds for the upper court.

Pearl Lewis, taken out of the house at the same time, was held in $100 bonds for fornication.

Joshua Dixon, charged with being drunk, was fined $2 and cost.

Carl Labour, for drunkenness and

EVERY NAVY OFFICER

Secretary of the Navy Meyer has decided that beginning with the new year every officer in the navy, except midshipmen at Annapolis must take a ten mile walk once a month. The order in which the new physical test is prescribed states that only those who are disabled in the line of duty or who have only one year to serve before the legal retirement age is reached shall be exempt, whether abroad or ashore. The walk must be completed with four consecutive hours.

Before taking the first monthly walk in each year hereafter the officers will be examined by a board of naval medical officers who will determine whether or not the officer may take the exercise without danger to himself. If the officer is physically fit he will start on the walk and within three hours, if practicable, after the walk is completed the same medical board shall again examine him to determine what effect the exercise has had.

The order is divided into twelve paragraphs. Nos. 7 and 8 have attracted much attention in the service for those paragraphs may indicate the reasons that the behind the order they read:

7. In every case in which an officer is found by the medical examining board to be unfit to take the exercise or fails to complete the exercise for physical reasons he shall be ordered before a retiring board in case the physical disability developed be of a permanent nature. If the retiring board finds such officer fitted to perform his regular duties, it shall recommend whether he shall be permanently excused from taking the physical exercise or whether he shall be excused only for a limited period and, if the latter for what length of time. Should the officer be found disqualified to perform his duties the retiring board shall proceed as is customary in such cases.

8. In the case of a disability of a temporary character, in which there is expectation of recovery within a reasonable time, the officer may be excused from taking the exercise during such period as the Department may deem advisable, but he will be required to take the necessary steps to promote the removal of his disability. In case of refusal of neglect to submit to operation or undergo treatment as prescribed, the case will be considered on its merits.

Section B of Paragraph 1 states that officers serving in the tropics or climates where the temperature is unusually high will be required while in those climates to take a walk of only two-thirds the distance prescribed for officers in other climates.

Officers of the Atlantic Fleet, in talking of the ten mile order said they would probably be in Cuban water when the order goes into effect and if so they wondered whether or not those waters would be considered tropical and they would be required to only two thirds of the way, instead of doing the full ten miles, as will all of the officers who will remain in United States.

NAVAL NOTES

Would Have Had No Trouble Here Drydocks No. 14, in the New York yard, will be ready to take a ship by Jan. 1, 1912, judging by the present progress of the work. The dock will be large enough to handle any ship now under consideration. When completed it will cost about $2,500,000. No other work undertaken by the Navy has been done under such adverse conditions. Two contractors failed in an effort to build the dock. One of the chief causes of the delay and the failure of the contractor was the character of the soil in which the dock was built.

Cost Government Lots of Money The American gunboat Scorpion, stationed at Constantinople, and which has been for months undergoing repairs and refitting, and which recently was said to be ready to return to her post, still remains, and the time of her departure is very uncertain. It has been found that her coal bunkers are not water tight, and the extent of the necessary repairs and time that will be required to make them so are not known.

WILL HAVE EXTRA JURORS HEAR CASE

Los Angeles, Nov. 9.—When the McNamara murder trial opened today, the prosecution was prepared to exercise its option of further examination of J. B. Sexton, a real estate dealer and a new member of the City Council, who came from Stonington, Conn.

Sexton was accepted for cause yesterday by attorneys defending James B. McNamara. The State took up the examination along the line of belief in circumstantial evidence.

Questioned by Harton, Sexton said he was opposed to conviction upon circumstantial evidence alone, but that if he were convinced by such evidence that McNamara was guilty, he thought he would vote for conviction.

With three men in the jury box the question of additional jurors has arisen. A member of counsel for the State said definitely that 14 men would hear the case. This is possible under the California law. The defense admitted today the possibility of a test of this law.

The prosecution pointed out that if none of the 12 jurors did or became incapacitated otherwise, the extra two would not make any legal difference, as neither would be allowed to take part in the deliberations. If any juror should drop out the State ordinarily would have to begin all over again.

"THE BLUE BIRD"

Engagement Extended and Extra Matinees Added at the Shubert Theatre, Boston

The fourth big week of the engagement of Maeterlinck's exquisite fantasy, "The Blue Bird," will begin at the Shubert Theatre next Monday evening, Nov. 13, with the remarkable record of having played to packed houses at every performance there. Indeed, so great is the demand in advance for seats from all parts of New England that the management has found it not only necessary to extend the engagement until November 25th, but the coming week will inaugurate a series of two extra matinees, each week. These will be on Mondays and Fridays, and they are given in addition to the regular Wednesday and Saturday matinees. Out of town patrons will find it much more convenient to secure their seats by ordering them through the mail, thus avoiding waiting in the long line which forms a continuous procession to the ticket office window at the Shubert Theatre all day and evening.

Frequently "The Blue Bird" has been called the most beautifully conceived play of the generation for not only has it the charm of wonderful scenic effects and quaint characters, but also an appealing philosophy and symbolism. It fascinates children and grown-up alike. The directors at the New Theatre regarded neither time nor expense in making the production express completely the fantastic designs of the poet, and this year several innovations from the London, Paris and Berlin productions that add to the interpretation of the wonderful symbolism of the piece, were made. A part of the New Theatre Production.

The play was written for grown-ups, and though there is picturesque and whimsical appeal to children, only an older person can appreciate its impressive philosophy and meaning. In brief, the tale deals with the adventures of Tyltyl and Mytyl, the children of a woodchopper, who at the request of Fairy Berylune set out to capture the bluebird. With it once in their possession they achieve joy for themselves and their fellows. In the folklore of Lorraine the bluebird stands for happiness and it was upon this old fable that the poet drew for his material. Tyltyl in the quest of Berylune gave the children a wonderful diamond the turning of which would accomplish marvelous things. One turn they would see the inside of things while the souls of Fire, Water, Bread, the Cat and Dog would appear with power to speak. Another turn and they would behold the past and still another and the future would unfold before them.

SAILORS FIGHT HARD

Soldiers Defeat the Montana Boys at Portland

The fast ball team of the U. S. S. Montana went to Portland yesterday and battled against the strong Fort McKinley team. Though the score of 21 to 6 was in favor of the soldiers it does show that the sailors put up one of the most stubborn games so far this season on the gridiron.

The reason why the soldiers were able to roll up such a score against the Montana lads was their ability to play an open game which dazed the sailor's defense and the manner in which the McKinley players reeled off forward passes and outside kicks puzzled the visitors until after the second half was well under way.

The Montana men confined their efforts to playing old fashioned football and it was in this manner that they made their score as after a steady series of rushes from the middle of the field in the second half Paulson carried the ball over for the lone touchdown made by the visitors. The McKinley men scored all their touchdowns by the forward pass. Dyer was particularly successful in making good distance with this play. Linehan booted the ball well for McKinley.

The engagement of Miss Gertrude Frances O'Neill and Dr. Benjamin C. Woodbury Jr. is announced. Miss O'Neill is a niece of the Rev. Charles A. Holbrook, formerly rector of St. John's parish. Miss O'Neill is also a niece of Rear Admiral Charles O'Neill and is of Boston and New York. Dr. Woodbury is one of Portsmouth's best known physicians.
